Yes, I would agree that its best to go to your first concert with someone. I think that it will make the experience more enjoyable for you. Yes, I have a few animals, but I mostly focus on vegetables. I would like to start selling eggs from my chickens. Right now I have 12 chickens, but I was thinking of getting some more. Do you think people will pay a little extra if they can get farm fresh eggs? Yes, that is true. I would pay a little extra for farm fresh eggs. My parents were farmers and they were the ones that recommended I start selling eggs. Do you have any plans to go to any Magic Sword concerts this year? I could take a trip down to go with you. Oh great! I bet you're excited to finally attend your first concert. Don't be nervous, I think you'll have a great time. I found someone in the band who would like to go with me. We have tickets for a concert next month. I know you grow many crops on your farm, but do you have a lot of animals as well on the farm? It sound like it would be a good thing to do. I know I would. I really don't like what I've heard about big egg companies. new session I am still a bit nervous, but at least I won't be all alone. How many chickens do you have? I think it's great that you are going to a concert for the first time. I'm sure you will have a great time, and you should definitely go! Well, maybe a concert might be the best way to get over that. After all you know that everyone there is there for the same reason as you, and are all excited about the same thing as you. If you think about it that thing as you. If you think about it that they way, the crowd may seem smaller. Are you always nervous in crowds? or do you think it's something else? Maybe you can ask someone in the H.S. band to go with you? That's a good idea too! The at least you know if they ask, they probably have an interest in the concert! I think that's a fine plan. It might actually be the crowds. I try to avoid too crowded areas and concerts seems to be people packed like sardines I am considering buying tickets to go to a concert. I thought about how I had never been to one, and it felt kind of sad. There is a band called 'Nage's Sunor' that I listen to frequently and that will be performing near me soon, and I think I want to go. That's not a bad idea, I'm kind of shy though so maybe I'll wear one of my magic sword t shirts and see if anyone asks me about it I'm still thinking about it, i don't know why I am so nervous to go to a concert. It shouldn't be that big of a deal Thats true, it might be even better if I have someone I know with go with me. I need to look for someone 1 day ago They were amazing, well worth the drive. They even had a great and talented trumpet player. I am sorry to hear that. Would you say your main focus is on music or with academics? That is amazing that you are able to do that so successfully. I wish I could've done that back when I was in high school, and maye that would have pursued my dreams of music. However, I am content with my life now. Yes I am . I followed in my parent's foot steps. On this new farm in Charlotte, there is enough space to accompany all of my family. Yes, it has definitely been a long time. Have you got to see any bands recently, or are you just focused on your own? I've actually never been to any sort of concer other than ones where I've glayed concer other than ones where I've glayed with the school band, if you consider that a real concert. My parents keep me on a pretty light leash, and school keeps me very busy anyway. I try to excel in both. I find them sort of complementary, to be honest. I work on music for a while and that makes it easier to go back to academics, and vice versa. It mixes things up. Oh, cool. Was that the first time you saw them play since your brothers took you to see them as a kid? What do you do for a living? Are you a farmer like your forebears? That's fantastic What all do you grow? 1 day 1 hour ago How was the concert you witnessed? Roxy music. My 2 older brothers took me to see them when I was a kid. Nice talking to you! Great place!
